

ARDEN COMMUNITY TO GET ELECRICITY

Wilmington and Philadelphia Traction Company to Extend Lines

ARDEN, June 16 .- The trustees of Arden and Ardentown, the twin single-tax colonies in Brandywine hundred, have entered into an agreement with the Wilmington and Philadelphia Traction Company to extend its electric lighting system to the community, and at a meeting of residents with representatives of the traction company, held in the club house last night, forty Arden and Ardentown leaseholders signed contracts with the company. Arrangements have been made with the trustees for the 104 cation of poles and the work of setting the poles and stringing wires is to be started immediately.

The acquisition of electric light and power will add to the increasing metropolitan aspect of the community, particularly as it will provide power for the operation of several art craft industries and replace to a large extent other artificial means for light upon which the colonists have been dependent for many years.
